A delegation from Jamaica will be visiting Central Ohio April 7-10. The three-week program, locally coordinated by IVC, is designed for Jamaicans representing media, human rights groups, government and academic sectors, who will visit other U.S. cities. This project will demonstrate and compare strategies used to combat corruption, with a special emphasis on strategies for improving transparency and accountability at the national, state and local levels.

Program Objectives:

- Learn to develop and implement anti-corruption legislation including protection for "whistleblowers";
- Observe design of decentralized checks and balances systems;
- Emphasize the role of the media and freedom of information in exposing and investigating corruption and as key components of anti-corruption programs;
- Build effective anti-corruption watchdog organizations;
- Learn the impacts of unethical behavior in social and economic development, and
